

COMPETITIONS

Intergenerational Neighborhood in Switzerland

The Intergenerational neighborhood creates a sense of community diversity and mixing generations. It aims to connect people of different ages in order to create an urban environment and local character, inviting and engaging, which may be part of the whole community. The house is equipped with different services visible and open to the outside, in order to give life to a friendly and flexible place from outgoing character that invites the outside world to enter. It is also important that the house functions both in small and in large scale. In the first case you want to create a situation of well-being in everyday life for the inhabitants and for the employees. In the second it aspires to a feeling of community that stresses the importance of the involvement of the local community within the house. general idea is to achieve a holistic and innovative project, which will in a new and different inspire future generations through a building that weaves nursing home, residential and urban open spaces, creating an engaging community that involves people different ages.

TEAM: Andrea Braekkan, Roberta Cassi, Barbara Fernandes, Mariapaola Michelotto, Christina Tantcheva,

Intergenerational Neighborhood in Switzerland

